

EU Conditionality: A Sustainable Framework for Good Neighborly Relations Between Turkey and Greece?

TURKEY AND EUROPE

CHALLENGING PARTNERS

EU CONDITIONALITY: A SUSTAINABLE FRAMEWORK FOR GOOD NEIGHBORLY RELATIONS BETWEEN TURKEY AND GREECE?

KOSTAS IFANTIS
SERHAT GÜVENÇ

28 MARCH 2022

This publication was produced as part of the CATS Network Project, titled "Turkey as a partner and challenge for European Security". The Centre for Applied Turkey Studies (CATS) at Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik (SWP) in Berlin is funded by Stiftung Mercator and the Federal Foreign Office. CATS is the curator of CATS Network, an international network of think tanks and research institutions working on Turkey.

The project is being conducted by a consortium of the International Relations Council of Turkey (IRCT), the Center for International and European Studies (CIES) at Kadir Has University, and the Institute of International Relations (IIR) at Panteion University.

CATS
Centre for Applied
Turkey Studies
NETWORK

STIFTUNG
MERCATOR

For the past three years, tension and animosity have returned to being routine in everyday relations between Turkey and Greece. The agenda has been packed with more issues of disagreement and has rendered what traditionally has been the core of Turkish-Greek contention, e.g., the delimitation of the Aegean continental shelf, to an almost nostalgic past.

To read full report please clickDownload

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Kostas Ifantis (Konstantinos Yfantis), is a member of Department of International, European and Area Studies at Panteion University of Athens. His academic interests and published research include international security and strategic studies, US foreign policy, Transatlantic relations and Greek and Turkish foreign and security policy.

Prof. Dr. Serhat Guvenc is a member of Department of International Relations at Kadir Has University. Previously he held faculty positions at Istanbul Bilgi University (2000-2010) and lectured as visiting Assistant Professor of History at the University of Chicago (2006), and as adjunct professor of international relations at Koç University (2008 and 2009) and Bosphorus University (2014). Dr. Güvenç's research interests include maritime security and modern Turkish military and naval history. Among others, he has authored "The Ottomans' Quest for Dreadnoughts" (2009, in Turkish), "Turkey in the Mediterranean during the Interwar Era" (2010 with Dilek Barlas) and "60 Years in NATO: Turkey's Contributions to Transatlantic Security (2013, in Turkish). His most recent publication, co-authored with Mesut Uyar, on "A Tale of Two Military Missions: The Germans and the Americans in Turkey" appeared in War and Society. Professor Güvenç is a board member of the Foundation of Lausanne Treaty Emigrants.